MARIA CHAPDELAINE

A young woman, living with her parents and siblings on a remote farm in harsh, picturesque norther Quebec, has three suitors: a steady and unimaginative farmer, Eutrope, the Americanized and welathy Lorenzo, who has sought his fortune in Boston, and François Paradis, a rough and virile logger who captures her heart despite the warnings of her parents and the village priest. For a year, marked by seasonal change in an atmosphere charged with the strangeness of Indians and the demons of the woods, we see Maria at work and prayer, struggling with decisions, choosing to stay in Canada, in love with François, seeking to change his rough behaviors and deling with extraordinary loss.
