PICHE', THE LANDING OF A MAN

Drawing on his instincts and his tumultuous past, Robert Piché finds the strength and composure necessary to land his plane after it runs out of gas, saving the lives of 306 passengers in the process. After the heroic event, Robert spends some time in a substance abuse treatment facility to conquer his alcoholism, where he will learn to face the consequences of that faithful day and his time spent in jail. Only by accepting his past will he be able to make sense of his life.
